

Math x Economics

Thursday | June 30

2011

- | | | |
|-------------------|---|--|
| 08:30 A.M. | Breakfast | 1st floor, Liberty Room |
| 09:00 A.M. | Welcome to the New York Fed
Linda Goldberg, International Research, New York Fed | 1st floor, Liberty Room |
| 09:15 A.M. | Overview: Why study math and economics
Jane Katz, Economic Education, New York Fed | 1st floor, Liberty Room |
| 09:30 A.M. | CONCURRENT SESSIONS (45 minutes each) | |
| | Trading game: How prices are set
Menno Middeldorp, Markets, New York Fed | 13th floor, Conference Room 26 |
| | Econ mini-seminar: Two hypotheses about family decision-making
Fenaba Addo, Policy Analysis and Management, Cornell University | 13th floor, Conference Room 27 |
| | Panel discussion with young economists: Studying math and economics in college
Moderator: Terry-Ann Craigie, Economics Department, Connecticut College

Matthew Hom, University of Arizona/ Research Intern, New York Fed

Ging Cee Ng, Macro & Monetary Studies, New York Fed

Olga Rodriguez, Economics of Education, Columbia University | 13th floor, Conference Room 28 |
| 12:00 P.M. | Lunch | 1st floor, Liberty Room |

01:30 P.M.

CONCURRENT SESSIONS (20-25 minutes each)

Gold vault tour: The policy responsibilities of the Federal Reserve

Jane Katz, Economic, Education, New York Fed

1st floor, Gold Vault

Markets Desk: An overview

Michael Holscher, Markets, New York Fed

9th floor, Markets Desk

Econ mini-talk: Using math to model social behavior

Mary Burke, Research, Boston Fed

13th floor, Washington Dining Room

03:00 P.M.

Panel discussion: Careers in economics

Moderator: Linda Goldberg, International Research, New York Fed

10th floor, Benjamin Strong Room

Mary Burke, Research, Boston Fed

Seth Carpenter, Monetary Affairs, Federal Reserve Board of Governors

Karin Kimbrough, Markets, New York Fed

Mark Hugo Lopez, Pew Hispanic Center

04:00 P.M.

Closing remarks

Krishna Guha, Communications, New York Fed

10th floor, Benjamin Strong Room

04:15 P.M.

Reception for participants and invited New York Fed staff and interns

Sponsored by the Office of Diversity and Inclusion

1st floor, Liberty Room