

Introducing the New York Fed's New Head of Outreach & Education, David Erickson, Ph.D.

In this role, David will serve as a senior thought leader for the New York Fed across our engagement efforts. He will be responsible for community development and economic education with a lens towards promoting economic growth and financial stability within our District. David has a long history fostering and elevating community issues, with a particular focus on facilitating solutions that best serve the community. Most recently, David worked as the Director of the Community Development Department at the San Francisco Fed.

David Erickson
Senior Vice President
Head of Outreach & Education
New York Fed

“The New York region’s talent and brainpower is renowned for solving so many of our most intractable social concerns, whether it is multi-generational poverty, economic development in weaker markets, or improving the social determinants of health for everyone. I am excited to connect with those of you working on these and other pressing issues, and to help bring our team’s skills and connections as researchers, communicators, connectors, and educators, to bear on them as well.”

✉ david.erickson@ny.frb.org

☎ 212.720.6141