The SOFR Symposium: The Final Year

The ARRC is hosting The SOFR Symposium: The Final Year, a webinar series which highlights the significance of the LIBOR transition in its final year. The symposium sessions include panel discussions and presentations from ARRC members and representatives across various ARRC member institutions. Participants will have the opportunity to join engaging and dynamic sessions that give market participants practical guidance and answer any transition questions they have.

Those interested in viewing in the upcoming event live can register here. Recordings and presentations from each webinar will also be posted below on this page afterwards.

Please note that this page will continue to be updated as further symposiums are added to series and as more information is available.

- Symposium 1: March 22 from 1:30 PM – 3:30 PM EDT
  The first symposium focused on progress in transitioning away from LIBOR, and on areas such as the loan market where progress has been slower.

Symposium 6: October 26 from 11:00 AM – 12:30 PM EDT

The sixth symposium covered the transition from the perspectives of the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency and banks and borrowers. The event opened with remarks by Acting Comptroller of the Currency Michael J. Hsu, who discussed the importance of maintaining trust in the banking system during the transition from LIBOR to replacement rates and was followed by a discussion featuring leadership from various banks and borrowers on their efforts to prepare for the U.S. supervisory guidance advising firms to end new LIBOR issuances by year-end, and how they are taking the ARRC’s recent “time to move” recommendation into account to do so.
