Since 1967, Boys & Girls Clubs of Puerto Rico has changed the lives of more than 65,000 children and youth from the most vulnerable communities in Puerto Rico. Guided by its mission of providing children and youth hope for a better future and the opportunity to develop to their full potential, the organization provides participants a creative and safe place to develop as leaders and reach their academic, professional and personal goals. Through more than 50 years of history, the organization has taken the lead in after school services and has grown from a Center in San Juan to having presence in 12 communities with Centers located from coast to coast on the island. BG CPR centers are located in economically distressed and underserved communities characterized in the 2011-2015 Census tract. More than 90% of BG CPR participants live on households with income below the federal poverty line.

BG CPR programmatic pillars center on: Education: Tutoring & assistance in Spanish, English and math, computer skills training and career development experiences to increase job readiness; Social/Character/Leadership: Opportunities to lead and serve the communities to form responsible citizens who contribute to society Economic development: training and opportunities to obtain or create a job through job readiness and entrepreneurship, and Vimenti: An integral services center for the entire family with a two-generation service model to provide development opportunities and economic security to children, youth, adults and families. Vimenti runs the first charter school in Puerto Rico, has an after-school program for children and youth and has an employment development program for youth and adults. Vimenti School uses the human-centric design process to put its students and family's needs and interests at the center of the strategy.

This proposal addresses the issue of child poverty in Puerto Rico and its related social issues such as inequality and barriers to access high quality basic services such as education, nutrition/health and economic security. Puerto Rico is in a very challenged financial situation with a 30 year average of child poverty at 58% (double the highest child poverty rate stateside). In the past 10 years, there has been a 35% reduction in the overall population under the age of 18 due to migration and low birth rates. There is a cycle of generational poverty, a long-term situation where a family has been in poverty for two generation or longer. Among those, of the population under age 35, 60% make minimum wage and are not employed full-time. Post-Maria, a report cited that 35% of families said that they would leave the Island if they were given the opportunity to do so. To rise to meet those needs, BGCPR has developed a more comprehensive economic development vision which, in turn, will result in a stronger community, with residents that pay taxes and contribute to the wellbeing of society.

BCGPR most recent survey, completed during fiscal year 2017-18 reveals that 88% of our participants' households have income below the median family income in Puerto Rico, with 59% living on households with incomes of $5,000 or less. The median household income of $21,677 (US Census Bureau, 2018). Statistics hold for participants from the Villa Prades Community, the target population of this proposal. BGCPR studies of the population also indicate that these families have lived in the community for generations, making the issue of poverty cyclic and generational.
