¹A working group handles special projects and operates in lieu of a subcommittee primarily because a working group facilitates a more flexible agenda for addressing specific issues. The Committee may also appoint members as liaisons to working groups. These members attend working group meetings, articulate the Committee's directives, and promote communication between the working group and the Committee.

²The Operations Managers Working Group was the Committee's only standing working group in 2000.

³The Risk Managers Working Group was not active during 2000.

⁴Because the Risk Managers Working Group has not been active since 1997, the Committee opted not to designate a liaison for 2001. A liaison, however, will be appointed if the group is activated during the year. The Membership Subcommittee, as discussed on page 21, decided to eliminate—at least for now—the role of issue coordinator.
